

A week in the life of Portent Alliance

Written by Ailinea

Monday, 01 December 2008 03:02 - Last Updated Monday, 01 December 2008 03:24

This is the first of a weekly feature where people can post what they've done over the past week. (Because the site is still new, this is also an opportunity to test out the Comments feature...but you have to be a registered member to use it!)

It doesn't matter how "big" or "small" your accomplishment is. If it's something you want to mention, please post it! In the future, I would like this intro article to be guild-focused, and the comments be about individuals. However, being the first post, we gotta start somewhere....

This weekend was Thanksgiving, so a lot of people were away from Azeroth. Those who were home were able to put in some serious playing hours. Here are a few of the accomplishments I know of. Please add your own:

- Leoloren was having lag problems, so Xendayr, Ailinea, Grissle, and Jezriyah went into the Violet Hold instance for the first time (on regular, since it was the first time we'd seen it) and 4-manned it with little problem. When Leo was able to finally log in, we 5-manned it easily.
- Jez and Leo both hit level 80 during the break. They join Thuryn and Grissle in the Level 80 Club.
- Xen and Aili are not far behind, and hit 79 on Sunday night. They plan to hit 80 this week.
- Indisthanis hit 70...then proceeded to work on Maranthis. She and Hernesson were distracted by shiny Death Knight alts.

I know there was more...but it's late and that's all I can remember. Add your own to make the list complete! (And don't forget to post screenshots!)